Water safety is especially important at this time of year, as children spend more time playing outdoors in warmer weather.

Garden ponds can be a serious risk, so they should be fenced or covered. If you are visiting others, stay alert and check for potential hazards.

Always empty paddling pools after use and store them upside down, and make sure water containers like buckets or barrels are securely covered.

Hold hands and take two steps back near open water like rivers and lakes.

At the beach, choose lifeguarded areas, stay in shallow water, and follow safety signs.
